Sharing what Ten10 Junior Consultants are working on

Hi Everyone, I'm Joshua! I joined Ten10 as part of Academy 35 in 2024. Coming from a science background, I was initially hesitant about starting a career in tech. But once I began the academy, I realised everyone was starting from the same place, and the training was designed to build us up from the ground level. The trainers were incredibly supportive, which made a huge difference.

After completing my training, I was placed with ITV in October 2024 as a Platform Support Engineer. I didn't know much about the TV or advertising industry at first, but ITV provided a structured learning path—including a course called TV Master—that helped me gain confidence and understand the space I was stepping into.

In my role, I support users of ITV's addressable advertising platform, Planet V, along with several internal systems. I work within the Commercial Technology & Change department, where I help troubleshoot issues, communicate clearly with users and technical teams, and contribute to improving internal processes. While I started in a more supportive capacity, I've gradually taken on more ownership in projects and daily operations.

My biggest achievement so far has been being trusted with delivering a critical aspect of a project. I've also had the opportunity to take ownership of various reports and write up user communications that are now shared across the business. These experiences have really helped build my confidence and shown me how much I've developed since starting the academy.
