Sharing what Ten10 Junior Consultants are working on

Hello everyone, my name is Sam from Academy 36, I am currently placed at one of Ten10's civil service clients in policing as a Business Analyst.

When I first joined Ten10 in 2024 I was only interested in technical roles but over time working as a Business Analyst, I have realised the positive impact an efficient BA can have on a project which I found motivating. To do this I had to learn the ins and outs of the business area by reading/analysing the program's business documents. This allowed me to work effectively through understanding the current as-is business processes.

I work 2 days a week in office, although I didn't have to relocate around once a month I visit other agency offices around the UK. A typical day involves looking at the meeting schedule and prioritising my actions. Everyday is different one day I could be participating in workshops to gather requirements for a new system or business process and another day I could be doing gap analysis.

One of the main challenges I have experienced is the downtime of being a BA which I found difficult as I like to be busy. I resolved this through regular communication with my managers and expressing interest in work I would like to be involved in.

One of my biggest achievements so far is the excel work I developed for my team, this was a big piece of work combining the positives of several documents all in one. This work received praise from some of the other program and project managers and has been proposed for implementation into other projects.
